acting short courses for adults

at the national theatre
february-november 2012

acting options at the national theatre february to november 2012

In addition to its accredited professional training the National Theatre Drama School offers a range of popular short courses in acting for those 18+ who are looking to explore their performance potential.

The courses cater for everyone from beginners to those who are considering acting careers. A fun and supportive environment is assured.

Intro to Acting

8 weeks @ 2 hours per week $240

Monday or Wednesday 7.30-9.30pm

If you've never acted before, or only performed in plays in kindergarten or primary school, this class is a great place to start. Working with an experienced tutor you will be encouraged to let your imagination run free and unlock the sources of your creativity — no need to be nervous, everyone's coming from the same place! So jump in, have fun and see what happens!

Acting 1

10 weeks @ 2 hours per week $340

Wednesday or Friday 7.30-9.30pm

After the Intro to Acting course, or if you've done something equivalent, you'll probably be ready to start working with text and developing scripted performances. Acting 1 will give you experience in using your vocal and physical skills to embody the words on a page as living characters, interacting with others to tell humorous, dramatic or touching stories.

Acting 2

8 weeks @ 2.5 hours per week $340

Sunday 2.00-4.30pm

Acting 2 is primarily a scene-study workshop. It assumes that you have some performance experience and are interested in developing and finessing your acting skills. Participants may decide to work towards a workshop presentation for an invited audience in the last week or they may just prefer to continue developing their rehearsal skills.
